The main interest of mine is the Photo itself, not the things displayed on the picture.

Guram Cibachashvili's neoconceptual photographs overstep that form of "documentation", which shows only the concept.

Demonstrating unusual reproduction of ideas and thoughts they contain much more importance than usual information of conceptualism.

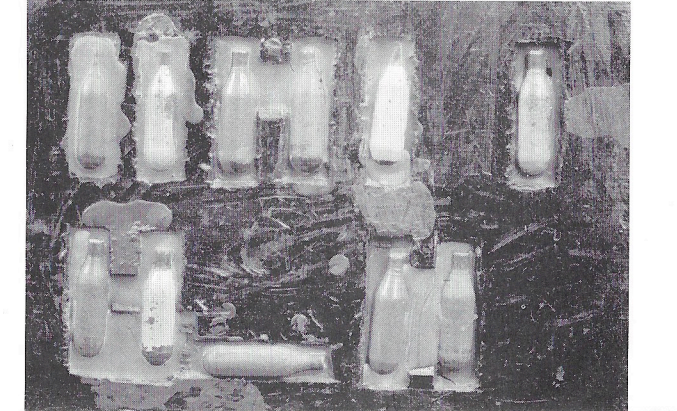

The author makes free combination of different materials: collective and private, signs of Soviet past and present, ideological codes and cultural cliches which make his photos bare resemblance to visual plastic photo-icons of high importance and interest.
